

Natural Heritage Tracker

Helps hunt down information about Montana's animal and plant communities

Natural Heritage Tracker is a newly expanded and revamped database of more than 429,000 Montana bird observation records, and nearly 100,000 observations of other vertebrate and invertebrate animal species, developed by the Montana Natural Heritage Program and available through its website www.mtnhp.org.

The purpose of Tracker is to give users access to maps, photos and up-to-date information about species, communities and habitats for a variety of research and management purposes. For more information about MtNHP or about using Tracker, contact Susan Crispin at (406) 444-3019 or email scrispin@mt.gov.
